We are doing a great job on the protest activity. Suffice to say that this is currently the top priority nation wide. As you know, Barcs and I were on the call with the OACP Emergency Planners today to brief on current activity and what to anticipate. At 1630 I was asked by the Commissioner to participate in a discussion with the Big 12 Chiefs on Resourcing. This is confidential but Ottawa is requesting 495 officers per day from external services - not to be shared. The OPP is currently obtaining resources from commands to assist. We should be good given our involvement.

As discussed today, here are our priorities:

1. Maintain obs and presence on ground to produce intelligence for planning. Specifically task these resources on trouble spots or targeted individuals.
2. Our client is police services and planners. Our on ground reports cite families, largely compliance, changed posture at evening, with increased aggression at times directed at police. And some concerning individuals or groups. But our HENDON report only relays the heady stuff, not the whole picture. We have to relay the picture we obtain - not just part of it.
3. Ensure on ground obs disseminated quickly and captured by our analysts in HENDON for external partners. We must ensure HENDON speaks to this on ground experience together with the social media component. By way of example, last night OPS supported by OPP seized fuel. There was very little response and nil resistance by protesters on ground. This is an important occurrence whether or not it is consistent moving forward. The communications of leaders are also instructive.
4. Maintain accuracy and currency in the intelligence report that Cath and Adrian did (current as of Friday) on the situation on the ground. Our client here is OPP planners.
5. In terms of national security, the wording in HENDON assessment concerned me slightly. I agree with the potential for officer safety and public safety but INSET and CSIS concur that there are no national security concerns. Confirmed today. If we have access to something they don't, we can meet them to discuss, but I am not aware of it.

Thanks guys. I sense action coming on this so let's stay at it.

Pat
